Special Cable Despatch to THE SON LONDON. Nov. 27 .- Political oratory has risen to a higher plane this wee than has been reached in this country since the height of the Home Rule crisis. the speeches in the House of Lords have reen both stately and statesmanlike. The gravity and far reaching complexity of the situation have brought, out the traditional forensic talent of British political leaders, which many had begun to think had perished with Lord Beaconsfield, John Bright, William Gladstone and Lord Salisbury.

The entire absence of passion in the debate in the Lords and the dominant note of seriousness have been in sharp contrast to the angry and abusive tone of many public speakers even in the Commons of late, and perhaps the best effect of the Lords' discussion of the budget this week has been to sober the than $2,500,000 has been won in stakes.

The national campaign is already in full swing, a condition which in itself is an unusual feature in this country where Governments usually go to the country on only a fortnight's notice. But this time the canvass will last for fully seven weeks, as the election will probably take place in the third week in January.

It is not yet known whether Parliament will be prorogued next week or merely adjourned until just previous to its disso lution. There is an important difference, because resolutions whereby taxes have been collected under the pending budget since April will expire if Parliament is prorogued, but will remain effective if it is only adjourned.

Members of the Cabinet have threatened to produce financial chaos to punish the Lords for their interference. The country knows that this is entirely unenough to resort to such tactics

PERIN'S MORESCO HOAK.

The hopes of archæologists, which were quite seriously aroused by the stories of Laurence Perin's reported discoveries at Ronda, Spain, have now been entirely abandoned. After enlisting King Alfonso's personal interest and the as ance of the Spanish Government, Mr. Perin left Madrid mysteriously and returned to Ronda. He scattered coins lavishly among his workmen and indulged in other eccentricities, some of which greatly alarmed the residents, and he was requested to leave the hotel where he was staying. It is stated that the Govern has now asked the American Consul at Malaga to take charge of him.

Architect Velasquez, who has visited Perin's estate, says, according to a despatch from Madrid, that he found interesting remains of Moorish art, but no trace of treasure.

Paris, Nov. 27.-The new naval programme to be submitted to the Chambe of Deputies in January proposes two Dreadnoughts to be laid down at Brest and L'Orient during 1910, two more in 1911 and two in 1912. The disposition of the turrets of these vessels will differ from either the American or British navies. Each turret will contain two 305 millimeter guns. Four turrets will be placed along the longitudinal axis of the ship, two forward and two aft, the two nearest the centre of the ship being elevated so that the guns in them can be fired over the other turrets.

Fifth and sixth turrets will be placed amidships, one on each side. They will be of the same diameter and on the same level, thus limiting the fire of their guns to their own sides. The secondary battery will consist of eighteen pieces of 138 millimeters. The vessels will have a speed of twenty knots. Special efforts are to be made to avoid delay in construction. It is not hoped to equal England's rate of twenty-four months for building a 20,000 ton ship or Germany's thirty months;

but everything possible will be done not to exceed thirty-six months. If this building rate is observed France counts on having by 1915 nineteen armorclads, of which twelve will be Dread-noughts. The cost of the new vessels is now estimated at 74,000,000 francs, or of the artillery, as is always the case in estimating the cost of warships in France

While Campaigning Near His Garden Party They Were Set Upon by Liberal Stewards, the Story Runs—Previously He Had Promised to Help the Cause

Winston Churchill with a dog whip. Not one, so far as I know, gave the reason that impelled her to do it, and without this it is impossible for the public to but to no avail. Cardinal Merry del Val form an intelligent opinion. "When Mr. Churchill was a candidate for Parliament last year he was interrogated by the women as to what he would to help their efforts for the suffrage, and he answered: 'I will try my best because I do think sincerely that the women have always had a logical case. and they have now got behind them a great popular demand among women. It is no longer a movement of a few extravagant and excitable people, but a movement which is gradually spreading to all classes of women; and that being so it assumes the same character as franchise movements have previously assumed.

"A short time ago Mr. Churchill was again interviewed by a deputation of women to know why he had not kept his promise and he answered in effect that he did not intend to do so because he disapproved of their militant methods At the time this deputation from the Women's Freedom League went to him he was about to speak at a garden party. The other branch of the suffragettes who had no connection with this deputation, began holding a meeting in the neighborhood and distributing literature, not interfering in any way with Mr. Churchill's Liberal meeting in a

They nearly dragged Miss Adela Pankhurst out of the automobile, tore the clothes of the other ladies, struck them and pelted them with sods, assailing them at the same time with coarse and revolting language. They twisted one girl's scarf around her neck, and pulling both ends tried to choke her.

A week later one of the suffragettes expressed her indignation toward Mr. Churchill in what she considered the most suitable manner by striking him with a dog whip, saying.
